Purpose of this document

This report explains the agent's intended behavior, the preliminary eligibility checklist, disqualification and referral paths, and the simulation scenarios used to validate the configured conversation. It is intended to help a reviewer understand the design and the evidence included in the submission.

Important scope note: the agent performs preliminary qualification only. It does not make a final credit decision, verify documents, issue an approved loan offer, or determine a final interest rate.

1. Project Overview

The objective is to build an AI voice agent that can handle an initial Loan Against Property (LAP) enquiry for Home Credit, gather the required information in a conversational way, apply the stated preliminary rules, and decide whether the customer can be referred to a senior loan expert. The agent should sound natural, avoid repeatedly asking for information already provided, and respond consistently when customers provide details out of order.

The design separates the conversation into three broad outcomes:

- Preliminary qualification: Collect the seven required checklist items and confirm that each one meets the defined rule.
- Disqualification: When a mandatory rule fails, explain the relevant reason politely and end the conversation without continuing the standard checklist.
- Specialist referral: If the customer already has a loan against the property and wants a transfer or EMI reduction, refer the customer to the appropriate loan-transfer specialist rather than treating the enquiry as a new LAP application.

2. Platform and Configuration

The agent was configured in Retell AI using a system prompt to specify its role, conversation style, eligibility checklist, disqualification rules, and referral behavior. The exact model and voice should be identified from the final agent configuration; this report does not assume any external backend, live CRM, loan origination system, or real telephony integration beyond what is demonstrated in the submitted evidence.

Core prompt responsibilities

- Introduce the offer and establish whether the customer is available to talk; if the customer is busy, ask for a suitable callback time and end the current conversation.
- Recognize existing LAP / loan-transfer / EMI-reduction intent and use the specialist referral path.
- Track the checklist across turns, accept information out of order, and avoid repeating questions whose answers are already known.
- Stop qualification immediately when a confirmed disqualifying condition is identified.
- Only hand off a standard LAP enquiry after all seven checklist items have been answered and passed.
- Never invent interest rates, imply guaranteed approval, or describe preliminary qualification as final approval.

3. Eligibility Rules and Decision Logic

The following table summarizes the rules implemented for the preliminary qualification flow. The agent's job is to gather and apply these criteria; final verification remains with the lender's authorized team.

Checklist item	Rule	Expected agent behavior
1. Property type	Residential, commercial, or industrial property may proceed. Agricultural property is disqualified.	If agricultural land/property is confirmed, explain the offer is unavailable and end the call immediately.
2. Ownership	Sole or joint ownership is acceptable under the stated criteria.	Capture ownership and do not ask again if already answered.
3. Original documents	Original property documents must be available for verification.	If unavailable, politely disqualify and end the conversation.
4. Loan amount	Maximum offer is ■75 lakh.	For requests above ■75 lakh, explain the cap and ask whether the customer accepts ■75 lakh. Proceed only after acceptance.
5. Occupation	Salaried and self-employed customers may proceed.	Record the customer's occupation; do not treat this as final credit approval.
6. Income channel	Income must be received in a bank account. Cash-only income is disqualified.	If income is confirmed as cash-only, explain the requirement and end the call.

Checklist item	Rule	Expected agent behavior
7. Property value and tenure	Collect estimated market value; no minimum value threshold is defined. Tenure must be 3–15 years inclusive.	Capture estimated value and tenure; disqualify tenure outside the permitted range.

Decision order

- First identify whether the customer is available and whether the request is for a new LAP enquiry or an existing-loan transfer/EMI reduction.
- For a standard enquiry, capture each checklist answer. Information may be given in any order; store known answers and ask only for missing items.
- Apply immediate disqualification rules when a confirmed failure is found. Do not continue collecting unrelated checklist information after disqualification.
- If the requested amount exceeds ■75 lakh, explicitly state the maximum and obtain a clear yes/no on the ■75 lakh alternative before proceeding.
- Only after all seven checklist items pass, refer the customer to a senior loan expert for next steps and the exact interest-rate discussion.

4. Conversation Quality and Safety

Because the agent is conversational, correctness includes both the eligibility decision and the way it handles customer turns. The intended behavior is:

- Memory across turns: Remember details already provided and avoid asking the same question again.
- Out-of-order answers: If the customer gives property type, ownership, and loan amount together, record all three and ask only for missing information.
- Corrections: If a customer corrects an earlier answer, use the corrected information and reassess eligibility.
- Short or ambiguous replies: Ask a brief clarification only when necessary; do not guess a critical eligibility answer.
- Polite endings: After disqualification or a declined ■75 lakh alternative, close the conversation instead of continuing the checklist.
- Honest claims: Do not invent interest rates, guarantee approval, or claim that a callback or specialist booking has been confirmed unless the system actually confirms it.
- Existing loan transfer: Route to the relevant specialist and end the current flow, rather than continuing new-customer qualification.

5. Simulation Test Plan and Results

Seven Retell AI simulation test cases were run. The statuses below reflect the results reported for this submission. Screenshots of the results should be included in the evidence folder.

#	Test case	Expected behavior	Reported result
1	Agricultural Property Rejection	Reject agricultural property immediately; politely explain and end the conversation.	Passed
2	Loan Amount Above Limit	Clearly state ■75 lakh maximum, ask if customer accepts, and continue only if accepted.	Passed
3	Cash-Only Income Rejection	Disqualify cash-only income and end without specialist referral.	Passed
4	Eligible Customer	Collect and retain all seven passing checklist items; hand off only after all pass.	Passed
5	Existing Loan Transfer	Refer existing LAP transfer / EMI-reduction request to the appropriate specialist and end the current flow.	Passed
6	Customer Declines ■75 Lakh	Respect refusal and end without continuing eligibility checks.	Passed
7	Original Documents Unavailable	Disqualify when original documents are unavailable; do not proceed to handoff.	Passed

Interpretation

Passing these simulations provides evidence that the agent followed the expected behavior for the seven tested scenarios. It does not prove that every possible real-world conversation will be handled correctly. Test outcomes should be supported by the saved Retell result screenshots and, where applicable, call recording and transcript.

6. Handoff, Limitations, and Future Work

Handoff behavior

For a standard LAP enquiry, the agent should refer the customer to a senior loan expert only after all seven checklist items have passed. The expert can discuss the exact applicable rate and next steps. For an existing-loan transfer or EMI-reduction request, the agent uses the specialist route defined for that request. A referral is not a promise of approval or a confirmed appointment unless an actual scheduling system confirms it.

Limitations

- The agent performs preliminary qualification and does not make a final lending or underwriting decision.
- The agent does not independently authenticate property documents, income, ownership, property valuation, or customer identity.
- Final interest rates, terms, document validation, and approval are outside the agent's authority and must be handled by the authorized team.
- Simulation results cover the defined test cases only; production performance would require additional testing and monitoring.
- This report does not claim a live CRM, loan-origination, or core banking integration unless such integration is separately demonstrated.

Potential future improvements

- Expand test coverage for interruptions, noisy audio, speech recognition errors, customer corrections, and several details supplied in a single response.
- Add tests for tenure below 3 years and above 15 years, commercial and industrial properties, joint ownership, and ambiguous income descriptions.
- Review call recordings and transcripts for response latency, naturalness, repeated questions, and correct end-of-call behavior.
- Where approved and available, integrate with a verified callback or case-management workflow and test its success/failure handling.
- Monitor quality over time and update prompts only after regression testing.
